4. Distinctive Features of the Programme and the Student Experience

The BA(Hons) Childhood Studies degree is a three-year programme that blends academic study with practical work-based learning.

This programme builds upon the achievements of the previous Childhood Studies degree course at University College Jersey.

The programme has the following distinctive features:

1. Needs of the Island – The degree programme for childhood studies is an established programme providing clear industry pathways for our island learners. The existence of the degree is to meet the islands' industry requirements and shortages within various sectors of early years practice and primary education.
2. Industry connections – Being based on a small island has supported effective connections with industry with strong links established for many years. Over the last few years this has been further developed to encourage a positive mentoring and coaching support network for the students within their placement and work-based learning experience. This has resulted in employment for those completing the FdA and BA(Hons) programmes of study.
3. On Island expertise – Engagement from the primary school and early years sector both prior and during the re-validation process has been positive. Engagement with the Childcare Registration team on island has been positive and supportive to ensure the programme meets the industry requirements and quality assurance for safe practice.
4. Research focussed – evidence informed modules- Jersey is in the unique position of choosing the best practices from around the world to ensure an effective learning experience designed specifically to meet the island's industry needs.
5. Sustainability pledge – Highlands College has a commitment to the United Nations 17 Sustainable Development Goals and the Childhood Studies programme recognises that working with children involves adopting practices that prioritise the well-being of individuals, communities, and the environment in a way that can be maintained over time. Some aspects of sustainable Childhood Studies work include:
 - Protecting the environment: Sustainable Childhood Studies practitioners recognise that environmental sustainability is crucial for the well-being of current and future generations and seeks to promote sustainable practices that reduce the negative impact on the environment
 - Promoting community engagement and partnership: This involves working collaboratively with private and public nurseries and schools as well as the charitable sector to identify their needs and aspirations, and co-creating modules and projects that are effective and sustainable
 - Supporting evidence-based practice: When working with children it is important to stay up to date with the latest research and evidence-based practices to ensure that practices and interventions are effective and produce positive outcomes

- Hybrid and responsive teaching methods – University College Jersey is committed to providing blended learning ~~flexible and hybrid learning~~, offering high quality approaches to teaching and learning that will enhance the future of course delivery. Highlands College has responded to the digital needs of its learners by providing excellent support from our internal IT department.

7. Programme Aims

The aims of the BA (Hons) Childhood Studies are to:

1. Prepare students for a management role in the childcare and teaching sector
2. Provide an informative and challenging programme of study which develops detailed knowledge and critical understanding of:
 - Leadership and inter professional perspectives in the childcare sector
 - The key themes that face the sector and the theory that underpins the approaches used to address them
 - Curriculum planning, assessment and pedagogical approaches
3. Develop the capability to:
 - Critically evaluate the performance of organisations and childcare strategies, the impact of a changing social, economic and political environment, and develop effective and ethical objectives, policies and processes
 - Use a range of analytical, problem solving and planning tools
 - Operate as productive and leading members of work and multi-agency teams

4. To prepare students for postgraduate studies and a successful career in the childcare sector, enabling them to make a significant contribution to the long-term development and success of their organisations

5. Enhance lifelong learning skills and personal development to enable graduates to achieve their potential and fully contribute to society at large

8. Programme Intended Learning Outcomes (PILOs)

8.1. Knowledge and understanding

On successful completion graduates should have developed:

1. Interpretation of the conceptual underpinnings of early childhood studies, including its historical origins, development, and limitations.
2. Systematic knowledge of babies, children, and multiple childhoods from a variety of perspectives.
3. An awareness of the importance of inter-professional, inter-agency, and multicultural working to enhance holistic development of babies and children.
4. A thorough comprehension of the theoretical underpinnings and practical application of pedagogical approaches and values for working with babies, children, families, and communities.
5. A detailed understanding of the principles and practices of holistic early childhood education, encompassing all aspects of children's development, including social, emotional, cognitive, physical and spiritual aspects.

8.2. Cognitive and intellectual skills

On successful completion graduates should have developed:

1. The ability to synthesise the interconnected aspects contributing to childhood studies.

2. An appreciation on the complexities of the ethical considerations and responsibilities associated with observing and documenting children's experiences.
3. Ability to evaluate and reflect on the implications of research and studying babies, children, families, and communities.
4. Critical analysis of local, national, and global policy and provision for babies, children, families, and communities, with a focus on engagement
5. Analytical recognition of the importance of human rights, diversity, equity, social justice, sustainability, and inclusion in relation to working with babies, children, families, and communities, and the ability to apply this to practice.

8.3. Key and transferable skills

On successful completion graduates should have developed the ability to:

1. Effectively communicate and collaborate within a team to develop key skills to prepare for the complexities of upholding diverse perspectives which inform local, national, and global practice.
2. Foster a culture of collaboration among diverse stakeholders to promote holistic understanding and effective action in shaping the experiences and well-being of babies and children within the context of political, economic, and cultural influences.
3. Demonstrate a sophisticated and self-directed approach to learning effectively assessing personal strengths and weaknesses, setting realistic goals, and reflecting on progress to achieve continuous improvement.
4. Demonstrate leadership and mentoring skills incorporating excellent active listening skills to support effective engagement with diverse perspectives and viewpoints, developing in-depth reflection of own skills and challenging biases.

5. Demonstrate a sophisticated and innovative approach when designing plans to integrate digital technologies and literacies into the learning process, effectively enhancing pedagogical practices and improving outcomes for children in a diverse range of contexts.

8.4. Employment related skills

On successful completion graduates should have developed:

1. A comprehensive understanding of the essential skills required for effective implementation of various pedagogical approaches in childhood educational settings.
2. A high-level ability to identify meaningful patterns in play, behaviour, and experience, and evaluate their significance in understanding the development of childhood and promoting child well-being.
3. The ability to be receptive to and advocate for babies, children, families and communities.
4. A highly developed ability to plan for, implement, and evaluate comprehensive approaches to promote and support children's holistic development, health, well-being, protection, safety, and the conditions that enable them to flourish.
5. Proficiency in locating, evaluating and synthesising information from a wide range of sources, including academic publications, professional reports, and other relevant materials.

8.5. Practical skills

On successful completion graduates should have developed:

1. The ability to take initiative and assume personal responsibility in professional practice.
2. The ability to apply ethical principles in practice, assess, plan, and implement appropriate pedagogical approaches to meet individual babies and children's needs.
3. The ability to build positive relationships with children, cultivating trust, empathy, and a sense of security.
4. The ability to document observations and compile developmental records to inform planning and interventions.
5. The ability to plan, adapt and modify activities to meet the diverse learning styles.

9. Admissions Criteria, including RPL and Disability Service arrangements

Equality and diversity are integral to this programme. The recruitment process ensures equal opportunity by respecting support needs for learners with protected characteristics such as disability and implementing reasonable accommodations both on campus and in settings. The programme team values a diverse workforce that reflects the changing demographics of the local community and recognises the importance of diverse perspectives in workforce development. Applications are evaluated fairly and equitably without discrimination based on age, disability, sexual orientation, marital or parental status, religion, social class, nationality, or ethnic origin. A transparent and fair admissions process is followed, in accordance with the University of Plymouth Equality and Diversity and Inclusion Policy.

Although it is preferable to achieve 5 GCSE grade C/4 or above in English language and Mathematics for this course, it is not mandatory, and the admissions tutor will consider alternative grades. If you choose to go on to study a PGCE, or Jersey Graduate Teacher Training Programme (JGTTP) you will require a science in addition to the maths and English GCSE grade 4 and above.

All candidates to be interviewed prior to an offer being made.

Normally students will be interviewed before an offer of a place on the programme will be made to ensure they have the ability to sensitively and safely undertake observations and activities in the workplace. Students will need to provide evidence that they are subscribed to the DBS update service and

Highlands College will assess their suitability. It is the student's responsibility to meet the payment for the DBS and maintain the update service. ~~addition to a DBS clearance, you~~ Students will also be required to present a reference from a suitable person. Students are expected to align with the Highlands College Fitness to Practice and Safeguarding Policies. The decision of suitability to study will remain with Highlands College

10. The programme offers a range of interim exit awards for ~~candidates~~ who are not able to complete the whole undergraduate curriculum. Exit awards will apply to students who decide to leave their study early and those students whose studies are terminated due to academic failure in line with University of Plymouth regulations or action following a Fitness to Practise Panel Procedure.

Commented [JB1]: I have asked Louise Webber to check section 10, waiting for response

Summary of criteria for interim and final awards:

- Students who successfully complete stage 1 (120 credits) of the programme and who have also completed 300 hours of placement demonstrating the Level 3 competencies (formally known as Licence to Practice) will be awarded a Certificate in Higher Education by the University of Plymouth and a certificate of Competence by Highlands College (the certificate of Competence issued by Highlands College recognises the early years practice of the student in line with competency achievement through undertaking 300 hours of work-based learning in an early years settings to meet the Jersey Early Years Educator standards. Birthto5Matters-download.pdf Securing quality and standards as one \(gov.je\)). Through completing placement hours and achieving competencies at level three the student will be eligible to be counted in the staff/child ratios in Jersey, but this is not transferable outside of the Island. This program allows the student to gain valuable experience working with children
- Students who successfully complete stage 1 (120 credits) of the programme but have not completed 300 placement hours demonstrating the Level 3 competencies will be awarded a Certificate in Higher Education by the University of Plymouth.

- Continuing students who have not achieved the Level 3 Competencies in Stage 1 have the opportunity to complete the 300 placement hours and demonstrate competence in Stage 2.
- Students who successfully complete stages 1 and 2 (240 credits) of the programme who wish to step off are awarded a Diploma in Higher Education. Students who have also completed 300 hours of placement demonstrating the Level 3 competencies will be awarded a Diploma in Higher Education by the University of Plymouth and a certificate of Competence by Highlands College.
- Students who successfully complete stages 1, 2 and 3 (360 credits) of the programme are awarded the BA(Hons) Childhood studies. Students who successfully complete at stages 1, 2 and 3 (360 credits) of the programme but do not complete placement hours and achieve competencies at level three may still be awarded the BA(Hons) Childhood studies

Students returning to the programme having interrupted study

- Students who have interrupted their study for whatever reason may be required to undertake Disclosure and Barring Service vetting and/or Occupational Health declarations prior to re-starting the programme.

11. Transitional Arrangements for existing students looking to progress onto the programme

- Applicants for Sept 2024 will enrol on the new degree programme.
- 2023-2026 cohort of students moving to year 2 will remain on the current programme and complete the original programme of study.
- 2022-2025 cohort of students will remain on the current BA(Hons) 'top up' programme and complete the original programme of study.

- Students who are on an interruption will be contacted in writing to notify them of the changes to the programme of study and offered the opportunity to APEL.
- Students who wish to interrupt during the transitioning period will have the full support of UCJ to APEL onto the new programme ensuring they are not disadvantaged and offered the opportunity to continue with their original programme.

Summary of Module Content

This work based learning module will provide students with the opportunity to develop a range of core practice skills in an early years, key stage 1 and 2 settings. By working in partnership with practitioners, students will gain hands-on experience in observing, planning, and assessing children's learning. They will also gain a deeper understanding of the role of the adult in curriculum provision and supporting children's learning.

In addition, students will extend their knowledge of current statutory guidance and the importance of working in partnership with parents. They will also develop their skills towards becoming a professional practitioner. Through a series of directed tasks, reflections, observations and presentations students will demonstrate their knowledge, skills, and understanding of the effective early years practitioner whilst embedding key themes within their planning.

Summary of Module Content

This module provides a contextual, comprehensive overview of the early years, from the statutory frameworks that govern early years education to the importance of effective teamwork. Students will learn how to use research and theory to inform curriculum provision and assessment, and they will gain hands-on experience in meeting the holistic needs of all children through their placement attendance. Learners will conduct observations in line with current ethical practice culminating in a longitudinal study of a focus child.

Summary of Module Content

Students will learn to apply the perspectives of different disciplines to real-world situations. This will help students to develop a more holistic understanding of child development and to provide more effective care and education for young children. Students will reflect on the diverse viewpoints developing an open-minded, unbiased approach and to work more effectively with others. Finally, students will be able to identify the strengths and weaknesses of different approaches to child development, which will help them to make informed decisions about how to best support the needs of young children.

MODULE AIMS:

- Apply theoretical concepts and research findings to real-world practice in the statutory or third sector.
- Collaborate effectively with professionals from different disciplines to provide holistic support for children, parents, and the wider community.
- Contribute to the identification of potential research topics for the reflective portfolio.
- Communicate effectively and professionally with a range of stakeholders.

- Seek feedback from supervisors, colleagues, and service users to gain insights into personal practice.

ASSESSED LEARNING OUTCOMES: (additional guidance below; please refer to the Programme Specification for relevant Programme Intended Learning Outcomes.

At the end of the module the learner will be expected to be able to:

Summary of Module Content

Students will engage with an independent work-based learning journey, focusing on an area of their choice within the statutory and third sector settings. Guided by experienced practitioners, students will engage in a series of practice-based activities that integrate theoretical concepts and research findings into their everyday practice. Through this experience, students will gain a deeper understanding of the interconnectedness between theory and practice, fostering the ability to apply theoretical knowledge to real-world scenarios.

Students will explore theoretical frameworks and develop teamwork skills to support their recognition of the crucial role of collaboration to achieve positive outcomes for children, parents, and the wider community.

This module will serve as a culmination of the knowledge and skills acquired in previous modules, providing a platform for students to synthesise their learning and apply it to practical settings. Through their work-based learning experiences, students will identify potential topics for their reflective portfolios, further deepening their understanding of the merits of professional practice.

Summary of Module Content

This module will familiarise students with fundamental principles and processes within the field of research. The primary aim is to cultivate an understanding of research methodologies and approaches with a specific emphasis on addressing the ethical complexities that arise when children participate in research and to raise awareness of new developments and theories in the discipline.

Childhood studies is a multi-disciplinary field of research and as such is a fascinating field of study incorporating disciplines of psychology, sociology, politics, history and curriculum awareness. This also makes us challenge our thinking and research processes as it becomes difficult to explore just one of these disciplines in isolation. The module will provide students with information and ideas to enable them to select suitable research methods for a chosen area of study and be able to justify reasons for this. Students will be supported through the mechanics and processes of research methods and methodology and write up a research report, identifying how they would endeavour to carry out an enquiry.

Summary of Module Content

This module will help students develop an understanding of the different aspects of health and explore how children grow and develop both physically and cognitively. We will examine why health is so important for children's well-being and consider the social and economic factors that can influence their health.

Students will have the opportunity to learn more about a specific health issue, explore theoretical models and health promotion approaches. We will also discuss recent research and government initiatives to address current health issues and how to work with children to help them develop healthy lifestyles.

This module will help students understand the importance of children's health and how to promote it. Students will learn about the different dimensions of health, the factors that influence children's health, and how to work with children to support their development of healthy and physical lifestyles.

Summary of Module Content

Personal, social, and emotional development (PSE) underpins a child's overall development and plays a pivotal role in their ability to thrive in school, work, and life. This module delves into the theoretical foundations of PSE, examining various theoretical perspectives that provide insight into how children's PSE evolves across their early years. Learners will evaluate strategies for promoting emotional literacy and the importance of fostering positive mental health and resilience in children through effective pedagogical approaches. The module will develop learners' knowledge of the PSE curriculum, building knowledge of the importance of educating children about self-awareness and empathy whilst empowering children to navigate social situations with confidence and resilience.

Summary of Module Content

The honours Project is an extended piece of written work in which students can critically explore a chosen subject in depth. While students select the subject themselves, it is important to consult with their supervisor to ensure its appropriateness. Students will then undertake research in an area or on an issue that is of importance to the children and young people or the education sector. During the Autumn term students are expected to initiate their projects with the goal of completing them in the first two terms of their final year.

The module will include:

Looking in detail at an area of Childhood Studies or Education that personally interests them;

- Practicing and demonstrating their information gathering skills across various media;
- Practicing and demonstrating the skills of managing large amounts of information and organising it into a coherent structure;
- Gaining experience in taking responsibility for a project from its inception to completion; and
- Creating a unique piece of research that is entirely their own.

OTHER MODULE STAFF:

This module will explore the theory behind curriculum construction, different types of curriculum and the purpose of a curriculum. The impact of a planned curriculum needs to be evaluated to ensure that it meets the needs of the students by considering its cultural specificity and core subjects and values. The ability to plan ahead and be flexible is key in creating meaningful learning experiences which embed life skills and encourage motivation for learning.

Assessment for learning should consider the views of young people, their behaviour and learning in order to extend their experiences appropriately. Students will be encouraged to reflect and evaluate curriculum types to create a learner centred curriculum with structure and flexibility that makes learning irresistible to young people.

Specifically, students will learn about:

- The different subjects that are taught in various Key Stages
- The key concepts and skills that children should learn in each subject
- How to design and deliver lessons that are engaging and challenging
- How to assess children's learning in a fair and accurate way
- How to use assessment data to inform future planning

Summary of Module Content

This module offers a comprehensive exploration of management and leadership tailored to the distinctive challenges of childcare and educational environments. It establishes a robust foundation by intertwining theoretical principles with practical applications.

Students acquire skills to assess the current childcare sector landscape in Jersey, identifying key drivers of change and risks. The module also delves into the intricacies of organisational development, empowering students to critically contribute to vision, culture, innovation, and empowerment initiatives. Students will study management theories and practices specific to childcare and education, enhancing their analytical and application abilities for informed decision-making and effective leadership.

The module is designed to support businesses and agencies that work with children 0-16 in Jersey, and to prepare students for future leadership and management roles in the childcare sector.

OTHER MODULE STAFF:

In this module you will assume the role of external consultants, under academic supervision, while working on a specific project for a client within an organisation related to childcare / education. The client will act as your mentor, and they will have the opportunity to provide feedback on your work which will remain their property. Throughout the year a series of workshops will be conducted to facilitate group and individual discussions regarding progress of your projects.

The process of project planning will, typically, involve the following:

- identification of a problem or issue
- negotiating the Terms of Reference
- selecting action steps and formulating a plan of approach and identifying ethical issues
- planning data collection process
- collecting data or evidence
- communicating findings, proposing solutions and making recommendations

The following types of consultancy may be envisaged;

- The review or evaluation of a specific activity or service provided by the client.
- The focussed analysis of a specific set of data held by the client
- The identification of the future strategic threats and opportunities, and possible implementation barriers to new initiatives

Summary of Module Content

This module will provide an advanced exploration of the principles and practice of coaching and mentoring in the workplace in childcare settings. It will introduce the theory and practice behind these methods, with particular focus on how they can be used to support individuals in achieving their goals ensuring wellbeing of all.

Through a combination of theoretical foundations and practical applications the module will examine the different approaches to coaching and mentoring, including how to assess the needs of individuals, and how to create a supportive environment for learning and development. It will also explore the role of feedback in these processes, and how to use it effectively.

Students will gain an understanding of how to design and deliver effective coaching and mentoring, as well as how to evaluate the effectiveness of this. They will also gain practical experience in creating and delivering a coaching or mentoring session with students in work-based learning.
